Outline

Managing University Life will equip Keimyung Adams students with basic college survival skills required to be successful and productive students. The course covers a variety of topics including Active Reading and Learning, Researching and Note Taking, Time Management, Multiple Intelligences, Examination and Study Skills, Interpersonal Relations, and Employment Preparation.

Class Rules

This course is offered online at <http://keneckert.com/kac> and videos are mirrored at YouTube. You can watch the videos on a computer or smartphone.

Students will meet in the classroom three times: the first class, the midterm, and the final. For classes, very late students will be marked absent, and sick notes must be given within seven days.

Textbook

No textbook. Class materials will be available online for downloading and viewing or printing.

Evaluation

1. Mid-term exam: April 20 (Room 241, 242)
2. Final exam: June 15 (Room 241, 242)
3. Assignments: Six; due March 16, March 30, April 13, May 11, May 25, June 8 at midnight

You will pass Managing University Life unless you fail any exam or fail three or more assignments.

Assignments received after deadlines at midnight will be rejected. Students who copy other students' answers will also receive zero.

Managing University Life is 1-credit, Pass/Fail. Please don't assume you can do nothing and pass. In both Spring 2010 and 2011 this course had the highest failure rate in the English program and resulted in numerous scholarship cancellations.
